The Greek architecture was extremely sophisticated (see the picture at the top of this post), and even at the same time, they also constructed their structures with an extreme care for detail and beauty. Most of the buildings, when viewed from the outside, can actually be seen to be made of solid objects.. A lot of the work done by the ancient Greeks was also designed from a concept by Dio Chrysostom, the famous Greek sage. Many of the buildings, in particular, were based on the famous Corinthian buildings of Greek cities, but these also became the basic structures for the buildings of later civilizations like Rome and Greece. Here's an example that illustrates the concept of building the great cities of the ancient world on the Earth:..
